AD-0003	 A watercolor painting of a building facade, likely a church or cathedral, in Murcia, Spain. The painting is executed in a soft, painterly style with visible brushstrokes. The central focus is a dark doorway or entrance, flanked by lighter, textured walls. Above the doorway, there are architectural details like a small arched window and a decorative element. The background shows a hazy sky and some foliage on the right side. The overall color palette is muted, with earthy tones and soft blues.
